Prospective Queens Primp With Homecoming Oct. 27

By Doris Henning

Beards are bristling, prospective queens are dreaming and the freshmen are again preparing to don their beanies for Homecoming festivities.

"Dunk the Dutchmen" will be the Homecoming slogan as the Knights prepare to meet Central in the Saturday game. Painted megaphones and painted three-color pennants designed by John Solem, sophomore, will add to the color of the stands, while pins containing the Homecoming slogan will grace the lapels of loyal Wartburg ers. Novelty sales will start about a week earlier this year in order to include the Music and Art Festival.

"Growing a beard for Homecoming will really prove to be worthwhile this year, as the prizes offered are exceptionally good," stated Gene Van Dreel, general chairman.

Judging Starts Oct. 25

Preliminary judging for the beard-growing contest will start at the Homecoming Convocation on Thursday, Oct. 25, according to Mary Remmers, special contest chairman. Six men will be chosen to appear in the finals at the Friday night Kastle Kapers.

A $20 electric razor will be given as first prize to the man who shaves off his beard first, with all other finalists receiving various shaving prizes. Parker '51 pens will be given for the most unusual beard and for the best gentlemanly-looking burs. combination.

Attendants Lists Parade

Annual Homecoming parade, led by senior-elect Student Body President Don Altmann, is scheduled for 10:30 Saturday morning. According to parade chairman Eric Janssen, junior, hosts from the surrounding area have been invited to appear.

Van Dreel emphasized the enormous amount of work to be done and asked that all students cooperate and work to prepare for Homecoming.

HC Banquet Tickets On Sale This Week

Tickets for the Homecoming Banquet may be purchased Thursday and Friday in Luther Hall by all juniors and seniors, according to Jeanne Dettmann, banquet chairman.

Freshmen and sophomores may pick up their tickets on Monday and Tuesday of the following week.

Tryouts Announced

Tryouts for the first Speech Department play of the season, "Harvey," a three-act comedy by Mary Chase, will be held Monday afternoon at 4 and Tuesday evening at 7 in the Little Theatre, according to director Charles Dickson.

Dancing Main Senate Issue

By Harold Kurtz

'Vote For . . .'

Limited dancing on the Wartburg campus will be the recommendation presented to the Student Senate Monday when it meets in a special session at 6:45 in the Union Senate office.

Presenting the report will be a special committee of Student Body President Don Altmann, SB Vice President Ed Schindler and Senator Harold Hendrks. Senator Hendrks will debate the issue prior to a general discussion of the topic at Thursday's Student Body meeting.

Also on Thursday's agenda will be discussion and possible vote on this year's Student Body Project.

"I definitely expect a vote to be taken on the question of dancing at Wartburg College," stated SB President Don Altmann. "If the Senate does not recommend that dancing be on Thursday's agenda, I believe that it will be brought up from the floor."

Altmann added that the poll taken at convo this week was not a vote as some people understood it. Results of this informal poll will not be released until next week.

Speaking at last Thursday's convo Michael Micich, Democratic candidate for Congressional seat in the st-ruggling international student exchange program with funds obtained from the sale of surplus farm commodities.

Speaking Tuesday will be Congressman H. R. Gross, Republican incumbent and candidate for the same office. Gross is serving his fourth term in Congress.

Students will also voice their opinions as to whether or not they want the Student Body Project to be part of the Wartburg drive for Wartburg expansion this fall.

Poll Four Years Ago

The last major attempt to bring dancing to the Wartburg campus was during the 1952-53 school year. The issue was dropped when, in a student vote showed that 48 per cent of the students favored dancing while 45 per cent opposed.

According to Altmann, the administration of the college is not opposed to the issue of dancing, provided that it is backed by student opinion.

Dancing is allowed at Capital University, another American Lutheran Church school, but is prohibited at the other colleges operated by the ALC.

ALC Meeting Nov

The ALC meeting at Blue Island, Ill., this week, is currently engaged in merger negotiations with the Evangelical Lutheran Church. The ELC does not allow dancing at any of its schools.

At the 1954 general convention of this body, opposition was seized during the merger debate to the ALC's policy of allowing dancing at Capital University.

The Iowa District of the ALC has also maintained a position of no dancing. At the 1955 meeting of this district, delegates put themselves on record as supporting the Lutheran Standard, weekly magazine of the ALC, for indirectly persuading the ALC approved dancing through its report on dancing at Capital.

Pictures Line Mom's Office

By Mary Mack

Some people carry a picture of a loved one in a locket, others have a billfold crammed with snapshots, but Mrs. Frances Wuebbens, Wartburg Hall director and "Mom" to hundreds of Wartburgers, has a whole office lined with what may well be one of the most unusual picture collections in the area.

Before coming to Wartburg, together with her husband, Mrs. Wuebbens was at Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., where he served as chaplain. Oftentimes she recalled in 1945 Memories of this experience and many others are mailed to her "walls of memory."

Edward R. Murrow, Bishop Ordass, president of Muhlenberg College, and Chaplain Wuebbens receiving their honorary degrees is the favorite of "Mom." The signing of a treaty aboard the USS Missouri by Admiral Nimitz is another memory.

The picture of Mrs. Wuebbens receiving a silver service in memory of her husband is not to be forgotten. Sherrill Wuebbens, her son, is stationed at Naval Chaplain.

The Navy boys, as "Mom" calls them, still drop in to say "hello". Wartburg Hall is "Half Way Home", according to the boys, since it is located halfway between the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans.

MOM'S BOYS adorn the walls of Mrs. Tamie Wuebbens' office in Wartburg Hall.

On the bulletin board given her by the Wartburg girls, hang memories of past residents of Wartburg Hall. One frame is completely filled with pictures of "Mom", Chaplain Wuebbens, their four children when young and their four grandchildren.

Pictures such as this collection add to the memories of "Mom", contribute to her life, recalling any individual in his line of her memorable events.

Dancing - Present Or Future?

Here we go again!

As regularly as election year, one word looms large on the horizon of campus consideration. A single word, mostly whispered, sometimes talked of openly and on occasion shouted in the beat of verbal battle.

That word? Dancing.

There have ever been social dancing on the Wartburg campus in the entire 104-year history of the school. The reasons for this reach back into the dim past and the history of the American Lutheran Church. Dancing was looked upon by the men who founded this institution and the ALC as a concession to those forces that constitute "the world and the flesh."

The debate for and against the present validity of the reasoning of these pioneers, however, still runs hot and heavy. Two summers ago the columns of the Lutheran Standard fairly sizzled with statement and counterstatement on this question. Other than the fact that the Iowa District seemed to go on record against social dancing at ALC schools, nothing has ever come of these arguments.

The American Lutheran Church has never made, or is it likely to make, a statement of policy concerning dancing. Where then lies the responsibility for granting or forbidding dancing on campus? With the Board of Regents. These men, elected at the ALC convention, are the ones who decide.

So there we have it — why we don't have dancing and who can grant us that "privilege."

The next question is: "Do we want it?" Student Body President Don Altmann reversed an earlier decision to release the results of Tuesday's convo poll after he saw the results of that poll. The implication of this move seems obvious — a preponderance of sentiment favorable to on-campus dancing. Otherwise, why bring up the issue at all?

Members of night the Senate will meet to go through the formality of deciding whether or not to bring the issue to the floor at Thursday's Student Body meeting. A formality, because Altmann obviously intended to bring it to the floor, one way or another.

The next question is the most important one: "What will be the results of this meeting?" If the question is voted down, then things will continue as they are. If, after the question is debated, a sizable majority of the Student Body declares itself in favor of dancing, then the question will be taken to the Board of Regents, and the wheels will become theirs alone.

Past samplings of the Regents have shown them to be rather cool toward the idea, but changes in sentiment have been noted in recent years. Whether or not any change has occurred to insure passage of the measure is anybody's guess.

So for the picture looks pretty speculative, but in the midst of that sea of vagueness and doubt, there is one positive fact: Student Body on this campus has a deep responsibility to be at that Student Body meeting Thursday and cast his vote as his conscience directs. Those who don't or there have no right whatsoever to complain about the eventual consequences.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Soapbox Strategy

By Don Oberdorfer

As the time for the final reckoning is not too far away, both political parties have managed to arouse their respective groups into an uproar and are combing the country sides beaming forth their respective messages of hope to the people.

Much has happened since we took our last look at the political arena. Our government, however, we find that in general, the feeling pertaining to the eventual outcome has not varied to any large degree. Stevenson, confident as he is of spilling his foe, has aimed his big guns mainly at the farmer.

Presuming 90 per cent parity on all basic commodities, encouraging the farmer to return to an economy which will compare to that of a bygone economy, and to assert that the Democratic party is now in the process of dealing with the relative importance of a good soil program, he is still confident of a wide swath through the ripening political question marks.

While the Presidential candidates were squaring off to start swinging, the vice presidential foes were just beginning to glare at each other. Not a great deal is being heard from Kefauver. These days, however, we all know that he is still sitting right in the Democratic rumble seat.

Richard Nixon, on the other hand, feeling that he would undoubtedly add a great deal of impetus to the Republican campaign, has been gally hopping from one end of the country to the other. He has, however, added instead of impetus, general series and point scribbed together with another probable foil in the multitude now dominating the scene.

In conclusion, we might state that the Democrats are attempting to add to the size of the Presidential race, while the Republicans are offering a fan to their already brown skins.

Published weekly during the school year, September 20, 1956, and re-entered Sept. 27, 1937, as second class matter at the post office at Waverly, Iowa, under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rate $2.00. The opinions expressed in this publication do not necessarily express those of the faculty or of the administration.

Well, Pogo, you've got a pretty good point there. But you forgot to mention that most college students will probably have to vote by absentee ballot.

So maybe it might be a good idea to mention that complete voting information for all states represented at Wartburg has been posted in all campus buildings since. And since most states have deadlines for applying for absentee ballots, it might be a good idea to hurry, hurry, hurry. But that information is irrelevant, since everybody says—"Go, Pogo!"

FOOTNOTES TO FAITH

All You Do, Do In Love — St. Paul

By Iris Heaney

If I were asked to sum up the challenge of the Christian life in a few words it would be hard to find a more complete and concise statement than these words to the Colossians (3:14), "Let all that you do, be done in love."

This is a challenge because it requires real effort to consistently "love your neighbor." And yet if one could love completely and perfectly, the law would be obeyed in every instance.

What is really surprising is the fact that we, few Christians—yes, even Wartburg students—refuse to accept the challenge. Our concept of sin includes only the glaring mistakes of life, but this command is broken by the little things we do—a flash of temper, sarcastic remarks or a good old gossip party.

Certainly these are not legal misdemeanors which will be tried and punished in court. Consequently, many people feel that they actually have a right to like or dislike anyone as long as they do no physical damage. But they are violating the Christian law, and that is serious because we Christians have only one reason for living—the law of love toward God and man.

How do we obey the law? The answer is simple—we can't. But still it remains a promise of salvation or an avoiding of damnation. Our only hope of fulfillment is to look to Christ as our example and try to be like Him.

For all the crusaders for the ideal of love, I can only ask who has ever won the battle against pride and sin but Christ Himself. Pray for help

by Bob Loste

Some of us have a sneaky notion that last Thursday's convo was a trick on the part of the Young Republicans to win over what few of us Democrats are left on campus.

I mean, what can I do? If I vote Democrat all my friends at Wartburg will hate me. If I vote Republican, my money from home is impounded, and my father disowns me. If I go independent, everybody will assume one of being a nasty non-conformist. And if I vote Communist, nobody will like me. What is the solution to this terrible dilemma?—I GO POGO.

Have you, too, seen the light? Then, quick like a bunny, dash up to Harold Kurtz, local campaign manager for Walt Kelley's candidate, and secure your Pogo Button.

The fellows from Vollmer House are still trying to figure this one out—last Wednesday as they started to their eight o'clock classes, they spotted a real, for live, honest-to-goodness deer on the playground at St. Paul's.

They decided to try to solve the thing, but couldn't figure out what to do with it in the unlikely event that they caught it. So they went on to class and the deer sauntered along its merry way to Riverside Park.

Speaking of politics, why don't you beat down that urge to cut next week's Shorest Body meeting and help make it a 100 per cent attendance. The dancing issue is back, and this is the closest we've ever been to putting it through. How about it?

Conference Football Race Turns Into Anybody Guess

By Stark Wroelsim

Wartburg takes the weekend off with an open date today while all eyes in the Iowa Conference turn to Decorah where Luther plays host to Simpson tonight.

Luther, a strong preseason favorite, has been unable to win in its two opening conference games. Dubuque held the Norse to a 7-7 tie in their opener and last week Central upended them 19-7.

Before the defeat by Central last week, Luther had compiled a streak of 21 games without defeat. During this skein only the Dubuque tie and a tie with Iowa Wesleyan last year marred the perfect win record.

With Luther suddenly sidetracked the conference picture has become completely muddled, with Simpson emerging as the strongest probable contender. Loaded with veterans the Redmen rolled to a 32-6 conquest of Central in their only action thus far.

Simpson Starts Slow

Last year Simpson started slow but after a 7-6 loss to Luther sailed through the rest of its season to finish in the tight tie in the conference behind Parsons and Luther.

Tonight's battle should give an indication if the Norse are really on the downhill grade or not. Luther will have the added incentive of the memory of the last two Saturdays to push it to greater heights tonight.

In another important game tonight, Buena Vista travels to Iowa Wesleyan. The Beavers defeated Wartburg 21-7 in their three loop encounter while the surprising Wesleyan squad has bounced from a non-conference loss to Carthage to lead the league with two straight victories. Last week the Tigers downed Upper Iowa 20-13 and the week before had upset Parsons, 6-0.

Upper Iowa To Dubuque

Upper Iowa, still seeking its first win of the season, goes to Dubuque to round out today's conference action. The Peacocks have failed to develop into the team followers were predicting in the early weeks of practice and today's game should be a tossup.

Dubuque showed great promise in its opening tie with Luther, but Coach Rocco Marone's squad is lacking in depth after his first stringers tire.

WHO'S JANE POWELL?

Hagen Just Knows Music

(This is the second in a series of three articles on the leaders of the three campus musical groups participating in the coming Fine Arts Festival. The concluding feature, on Choir director Edwin Liemohn, will appear in next Friday's TRUMPET—Ed.)

By Jim Roever

The Music and Art Festival wouldn't be complete without words from the baton of Ernest Hagen, teacher of music and director of the Wartburg Band and Wartburg Community Symphony orchestra.

Hagen, now spending his fifth year on the Wartburg campus, is a graduate of St. Olaf College and the University of Iowa, having spent seven years teaching in high schools and directing a concert Army choir at the University of Cincinnati.

When asked how the Fine Arts Center affect his work, Hagen replied, "This is the first year that I've been able to work efficiently in the department in regard to offices, rehearsal, practical, class and administrative," stated Hagen as he lined up work for his two secretaries.

Festival Unheralded

The Music and Art Festival coming up shortly will be unheralded, conducting the Castle Singers and the Band in an original composition "Out of This Presence" arranged by Dr. C. Arno Bowlen ven from a poem by Carl Sandburg.

"The aim from of art in the creative aspect," states the director, "and we are creating a new work written by a member of the staff and rehearsed and performed for the first time by students in the large organization. That is of more value to students, in the sense of learning, than it is to bring in any outside organization."

A share of his activities are spent working with the Wartburg Band, which will put on two concerts shown this year in addition to preparing for a tour during Spring Vacation.

"Students are becoming very enthusiastic about band," and the capable conductor, "and the players should develop into fine players." A highlight of the Homecoming festivities will be the half time show put on by the band, featuring seven area high school bands, all directed by former Wartburg students.

Hagen Symphony Director

In addition Hagen conducts performers from a radius of 50 miles as director of the Wartburg Community Symphony. Presently five orchestra per year, including a special "Children's Concert" in the fall. The organization, formed four years ago, is an asset to Waverly and surrounding area.

Highlighting his musical career, Hagen listed his studies in Europe under Clemens Krauss, former conductor of the Vienna Philharmonic, and his extensive training with Eugene Ormandy, where he conducted the Philadelphia Orchestra with Ormandy in the audience, and his work with Alfred Wallenstein and the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

"While in California we were given a tour of the MGM studios by Johnny Green, musical director, and shown how music sound tracks are recorded for movies." A highlight of the tour was to have each member of the group photographed with Jane Powell.

"All well and good," stated Hagen, "but I didn't even know until afterwards who she was."

Serves As Critic

Serving in his capacity of music critic for the Waterloo Daily Courier, Hagen is spending the weekend in Cleveland, Ohio, at a critics conference as a guest of the Cleveland Orchestra, the American Symphony Orchestra League and the Rockefeller Foundation.

Anyone working into Hagen's office in the Fine Arts Building, cannot help but notice the brass picture emblem on the large table there. Two men — Ernest Hagen and Eugene Ormandy, with the latter's hand on Hagen's shoulder. The look in Ormandy's eye seems to show the sincerity and respect that many students feel towards this talented gentleman.

"TAKE A BOW," says band director Ernest G. Hagen as the band stands for an encore during a recent formal concert in Knights Gymnasium.

Journalism In High School Advocated By L. G. Benz

By Ron Korfmacher

"Journalism should have a place in the teaching of English at the high school level," said Lester G. Benz, assistant professor of journalism at the State University of Iowa, in a speech delivered to the Iowa College Conference on English at Knights Gymnasium last night.

Benz said that many educators are opposed to the teaching of journalism in high schools as a result of movie and television impressions and because they consider journalism solely a vocational subject.

"Despite the attitude of these educators, it should be the function of the high school to develop the art of reading a newspaper," stated Mr. Benz. "Too many people with high school educations cannot competently read today's newspaper."

Shows Advantages

Going on to show advantages of journalism in relation to the study of English, Benz said that journalism does meet the basic aims of English and that it also provides incentive for students to write.

The speaker offered evidence for his statements by quoting a survey conducted in a large Iowa high school.

Survey Aids Support

"This survey," he said "definitely proved that average students who took journalism in high school had less trouble with English than good students without this background."

Concluding his speech, Mr. Benz added, "Journalism has something for every student, as it teaches responsibility, cooperation, tolerance and valuable experience in everyday living."
